Glorious Delft Blue

Royal Delft

January 18 – June 30, 2019

Impressive portraits, captivating still life paintings and glamorous showpieces, the Dutch Golden Age was a period like no other. Royal Delft, the last remaining Delft earthenware factory from the 17th century in Delft, has been making stylish and iconic Delft Blue since the Golden Age. In the special exhibition 'Glorious Delft Blue' Royal Delft presents Delft Blue glory from this period. In various themes the relationship is portrayed between the Golden Age and contemporary showpieces and trends. Each month extra activities will be organised related to each theme.

Pieter de Hooch in Delft

From the shadow of Vermeer

Museum Prinsenhof Delft

October 11 2019 – February 16 2020

The Museum Prinsenhof Delft is organising the first ever exhibition in the Netherlands devoted to the work of the famous Delft master Pieter de Hooch. Together with Johannes Vermeer, Pieter de Hooch (1629-after 1684) is considered one of the most important Delft masters of the Dutch Golden Age. De Hooch produced his finest paintings during his Delft years, 1652 to 1661, and the city plays a leading role in them. The Museum Prinsenhof Delft will bring these Delft masterpieces back to the city where they were created after an absence of almost four centuries, with works on loan from major collections all over the world. The exhibition will comprise approximately 35 paintings, 25 of which are by Pieter de Hooch.
